A HOOSIER TRAGEDY.

The Patrolmen Did Valiant Service For a Little Dog.

A few inglits ago a wildly excited in-dividual rished up to Patrolmen Shortridge and More, who can what is known as the Thirteenth A district, says the Indianapolis Sentinel. The man told river and was slowly drowsing at the Michigan street bridge. The officers made great basic to teach the place and when they arrived they isodovered that the words of the man were true. Something was in the water floundering around, and a human carry from the depths. The water is from twelve to fourteen feet deep at this from twave to fourteen feet deep at this point, and after trying in various ways to reach the object, and being unable to do so. Shortridge ran to the nearest telephone, and, calling up the poince beadquarters, wanted to know what to do.

THE TRIPLE SOMERSAULT. John Worland Threw It, But Others

Broke Their Necks.

I mw John Worland do the triple somer molt in New Hayen in 1884, and he told me men who have tried to do it, says Harper's Round Table. The first man to attempt to was a performer in Van Amborgh's nirous, in in 1842. He broke his neck,

W. J. Hobbes minde the attempt in London in 18-45 and was instantly killed. The successfully turning a double and was the original in accomplishing it over four horses. He tried to do a triple at the Isle of Wight in 1859, turned twice, lauded onlis for dead and broke his neek. Sam E, inhart became dissatisfied with the dooble conservant feat and was auxious to making a high loap, turned twice and a but similated on the broad of his back and was disabled for some time. Billy Ducton any complished the som at Eikhorn in 1860, but he never made massher attempt.

The only man, living or dead, that ever Worland, the man I saw. He threw a triple some result six times from a spring board. The first time be attempted it was at St. Leads in 1874. He made three trials, twice over five borses, landing on his back. At the third attempt he landed on his feet,

The next time hence implicated the feat was when I saw him at New Haven in 1884. The mayor of the city and many newspaper men were present. First a performer ran down then mother man followed and turned a comple, after which Workand ran down the bound and three a triple somersault, land-ley on a field on his feet an straight as an row. It has seldom occurred that any man gas done a triple some scorb before a circus sudience after due amountment, but there is no docht about Worland's act. It was duly amounced by the ring master and hun-dreds of people saw him do it.

The Fourteenth session will open Tnesday, October 1st. Address MRS. WM. D. CABELL,

Five Miles Up to a Snowstorm. There is little to suggest a snowstorm in the appearance of the aerial curls and feathers that are named by meteorologists cirrus clouds, but Dr. A. Benson, during his recent lofty balloon voyage in Germany, passed through a cirrus cloud at a height sceeding five miles and a half, and found that it consisted of small but perfectly formed flakes of snow. It was a little snowstorm floating high in the sky. If it had descended earthward it would have been turned into mist or rain.

During this voyage, which was one of the most extraordinary balloon trips on record. Dr. Benson attained a height of nearly six miles. He would undoubtedly have lost consciousness—as Mr. Glaisber did in his still loffier ascent many years ago—if he had not resorted to an expedient which reminds one of the ingenious devices of some of Jules that it consisted of small but perfectly of the ingenious devices of some of Jules

Dr. Benson carried with him bags of oxygen, and breathed this gas, mingled with air, after he had attained a height where the atmosphere was too light for comfortable respiration. He found that above 26,000 feet he could not dispense with the use of oxygen from the bags.

The temperature at the highest point that he attained, 31,496 feet, was about 5a degrees Fairenheit below zero. If at this time he had floated over the world's loftiest mountain, Mount Everest, in the
